Producer Overview	Cérvoles Cellar, undertaken by Tomàs Cusiné 20 years ago wanted to pay tribute to an ancestral wine-making land, regaining a practice that, at that time, did not have much interest in the world of wine: mountain viticulture. This project also represented a return to the roots without abandoning the technological advances that the present and the future offer. Therefore, in 1997, Cérvoles Cellar was created as a winery designed to produce high quality single estate wines, which express clearly the territory where they are grown and with its sights firmly set on the ultimate goal: to be the first mountain viticultural project set up in Catalonia. Read more online
