From Château du Cèdre in Cahors, Blandine Le Blanc is named after a colourful character with bright ideas and considered to be a visionary in her time. This wine is a refreshing blend of Colombard, Ugni Blanc and a touch of Sauvignon Blanc grapes from the Côtes de Gascogne area of South-West France. Dry in style, teeming with citrus and apple note, it is refreshing, zingy and lively!

Tasting Notes:

Clear cut nose with a hint of spice balanced with subtle tones of blossom. The palate complements this by lending apple, pear and juicy lemon flavours. Overall, the wine is refreshing, crisp and moreish.

Specification
Vinification	The vines in this region are well-established averaging 30 years and benefit from 2 different types of soil. The limestone/clay soil offers a natural temperature control preventing the soil from overheating and enabling water retention. The limestone soil lends valuable nutrients that facilitate grape ripening. To retain this wine's freshness and zing it is matured in stainless steel tanks which maintain the clean and crisp flavour.
