This is a big, rich and warm Languedoc wine, which although quite a serious wine, it is juicy, fruity and soft enough to be very easy drinking.

Tasting Notes:

Deep purple with violet hints. Intense and powerful nose, characterised by hints of ripe blackberry and black cherry. A gentle vegetal note brings freshness. The palate is juicy, packed with fruit and a touch of spice and bay, with a fine texture and beautiful tannic structure. Long and powerful.

Press Comments	Wine Merchant Magazine, August 2024: "We can only hope that Languedoc winemaker Philippe Lebrun has done his sums correctly because this seems like an awful lot of wine for under 10 quid. He's judiciously sourced fruit from hither, sometimes thither, and created a sumptuous, plummy but light-footed red with hints of spices and bayleaf." Joanna Simon, Wine of the Week, July 2024: "There's nothing complicated about this week's red wine and that's the point. It's just a joy to drink – a comforting hug of juicy plum, blackberry and black cherry fruit, a whiff of violets, a dash of spicy liquorice and a splash of black tapenade.
